- Give sacrificially to be a blessing.

Talk It Through

1. Have you ever received a small gift from someone that meant more to you than something expensive? What made it so special? Why do you think it's so easy to equate generosity with big amounts or public acts of giving, and how does that mindset shape the way we give?
2. What does the widow's story reveal about God's character and how He views our sacrifices, even when they seem small? What do you think God wants us to understand about the why behind our giving?
3. When you give, whether it's time, money, or energy, what usually drives it? Obligation, gratitude, joy, habit, or something else?
4. In what area of your life do you find it hardest to let go and trust God's provision—finances, time, or something else? Why do you think that's difficult?
5. What's one practical step you can take to give more intentionally or sacrificially in a way that deepens your faith and blesses others?
